TALKS – TITLE & ABSTRACTS

TEACHING A LANGUAGE – EDUCATING A PERSON

As ELT professionals, we are tasked with teaching our students a new language. In this talk I will be looking at how language is so much more than just a school topic; so much more than just a collection of words stuck together with the glue of grammar. I will be examining how our language tells us about our culture and our society and how it enables our students to describe and examine their own lives, realities and culture.

I will explore how, as teachers, we can fulfil the increasing demands made on us, by creating a global classroom for our English lessons; a classroom in which all students are welcome, all students feel motivated to participate and all students can progress.

Finally, I will argue that, in this global classroom, we can provide a truly supportive, flexible, 21st century education for our students.

MOTIVATING TEENAGE LEARNERS IN THE CLASSROOM

Teenager learners bring with them their own sets of challenges but also tremendous opportunities. In this webinar, I'll be looking at ways that we can overcome the challenges and harness the opportunities to create a truly motivating classroom. I'll share some ideas on how to begin and end your lessons so that your students will start each class wanting to find out more and finish feeling positive and engaged.

I'll also give some top tips on how to develop your students' creative and critical skills, motivating them to become more self-directed and independent.
